NEW-JERSEY NEWS.

THE REVOLVER FRIGHTENED HIM.

A TILL-TAPPER CAUGHT BY AN OLD MAN WITH AN UNLOADED WEAPON.

New-Brunswick, June 14 (Special).-Considerable excitement was occasioned in this city about noon to-day by a man driving rapidly through the streets and holding a revolver at the head of another man in the carriage. The man drove to the police sta-tion and loudly called for an officer. Soon Sergeant Clinton appeared and removed the revolver from the man's hear.

Clinton appeared and removed the revolver from the man's head.

The man with the revolver was William Wright, seventy years old, of South River, and the man at whose head he had held the revolver was Whitman McAllister, an employe in one of the South River brickyards. It appears that McAllister, with two other brickyard employes, had entered Swau's Hotel, at South River, kent by a Mr. Kellar, Mr. Kellar was out, and while Mrs. Kellar was drawing some beer for the men the latter tapped the till and stole 7. Then the thieves field, Mrs. Kellar pursuing and shouting after them.

Wright saw the incident, and, being informed by Mrs Kellar ot the heft, gave chase to the men and caught them. He drew his revolver and grabbed McAllister, while the other two men escaped. At the police station McAllister told Wright secured a wagon and brought McAllister into New-Brunswick in the manner described.

At the police station McAllister told Wright that he never would have surrendered had it not been for the revolver, whereupon Mr. Wright showed McAllister that the revolver was empty. McAllister was placed in jail as a disorderly character, pending a charge of larceny against him.

A. WOMAN FOILS A BURGLAR.

SHE GIVES AN ALARM WHICH RESULTS IN THE CAPTURE OF THE THIEF.

George Goelz, wife of the superintendent of the North Hudson County Railway Company's stables, rang Peter Volp's doorbell, at No. 73 Washington-st., Hoboken, late Sunday night, and hurriedly informed him that Mrs. George Mulford, who was sitting at a second-story window next door, had noticed a burglar in the act of scaling the veranda and forcing an entrance to Mr. Volp's veranda and forcing an entrance to air. Volprooms.

Volp went upstairs, and, peering into the darkened chamber, discovered the intruder hard at work ransacking the room. The burglar made an ineffectual attempt to hide himself, but Volpordered him to surrender. The stranger made no apologies for his presence in the room, and savagely attacked Volp, who was sent sprawling over a table. Before Volp recovered from his surprise the burglar ran downstairs to the street door, and cleared the front steps at a bound, almost knocking a man named Harry Stevens off the steps.
When Volp reached the door he had the satisfaction of seeing Stevens and the burglar engaged in tion of seeing Stevens and the burgiar engaged in a wrestling match at the gate. The burgiar was overpowered and was taken to Police Headquarters, where he was booked as Thomas Jones, twenty-seven years old, an electrician, of No. 227 Palisade-ave., West Hoboken. Later he said that his real name was Robert Doyle, and that he halled from Kalamazoo, Mich. He was held for the Grand Jury yesterday.

In Hotel-at, the horse, which was a spirited animal, became frightened and started over the rough cobblestones at a lively pace. The animal soon got beyond the control of Deerfoot, and, as it dashed along, two of the children shot out at a tangent and were knocked senseless by falling on the cobblestones. They were picked up by spectators and cred for. Deerfoot and the other child stayed in until the animal swerved and tilted the wagon up on two wheels. Deerfoot was thrown unceremonlously into a mortar bed, and escaped unhurt, while the child landed on the cobblestones and received a severe gash on the forebeat.

The horse dashed across Market-st. and was opped with its head a few feet away from a large atteglass window in the Paterson Savings Institution Building.

AN EPISODE OF FLAG DAY.

PATRIOTIC ASSURY PARK MEN FORCE A HOTEL-KEEPER TO HOIST THE STARS AND STRIPES ABOVE THE ITALIAN STANDARD.

West Asbury Park, June 14 (Special).-Rosa S. Capabanco recently erected a large store and hotel in West Asbury Park, adjacent to the settlement known as "Little Italy." The hundreds of Italians in the neighborhood trust the woman with their savings and look upon her as their leader, and she is known throughout the county as "The Queen of Italy." The hotel was formally opened to-day, and in honor of the occasion Rosa displayed a large Italian flag from the staff on the roof. The emblem was observed by Justice of the Peace John A. Borden, who is the commander of the local Grand Army post. Summoning three of his comrades, the commander hastened over to the hotel, and sought an interview with the proprietress. Henry Ven-bango, Rosa's representative, met the Grand Army men at the door.

"What flag is that flying over this building?" Justice Borden asked.
"The Italian flag." Venbango replied. "It's the Well, there's too much macaroni about it to suit us," Borden continued, "and if you want it to fly over the "Queen's' house, it must be displayed under the flag of this country." Venbango at first demurred, but after observing the determined faces demurred, but after observing the determined faces of the Grand Army men and consulting with a number of his fellow-countrymen, he finally agreed to the proposition. He procured an American flag at once, and in a few minutes the Italian flag was flying beneath "Old Glory." As the two embiems floated in the breeze the assembled veterans and Italians greeted them with hearty cheers. Later in the evening Venbango, fearing that the Italian standard was not low enough, dropped it until its folds almost swept the roof.

The boy climbed a tree to reach a swarm of bees on the afternoon of that day and, trusting himself to a frail limb, fell to the ground, a distance of thirty feet. He was carried to his home at No. 800 Linden-st, and Dr. McCroy attended him. The lad seemed to have no broken bones, but there were some signs of internal injuries, and there were some signs of internal injuries, and there were hopes of his recovery. In a day or two, however, paralysis of the lower limbs developed, and on Friedry the boy was removed to the hospital. The surgeons watched his case closely, and finally concluded that there must be a fracture of the spinal cord, either at the base of the brain or close to it. The boy cannot recover.

SHOOK FISTS AT MR. FITCH.

MR. EINSTEIN DEMANDS A RETRACTION FROM THE CONTROLLER.

THE LATTER HAD CHARGED THE DOCK BOARD WITH DISPOSING OF CHOICE PIERS BY PRIVATE AGREEMENT-WATER-FRONT IMPROVEMENT PLANS ADOPTED.

The Dock Board's plans for water-front improve The Dock Board's plans for water-from his tements between Charles and West Twenty-third sis. were adopted yesterday by the Sinking Fund Commission, together with the three conditional points on which Controller Fitch had insisted at the last on which Controller Fitch had insisted at the last on which Controller Fitch had insisted at the last meeting of the Board. These were: First, that the Dock Board demand more money in rentals for the additional space provided for steamship companies in the lower section, extending from Charles-st. to Gansevoort-st.; second, that the new piers be-tween Bloomfield and West Twenty-third sts. between Bloomfield and West Twenty-third sts. be rented at public auction, and, third, that from West Twelfth to Twenty-third sts. owners of property abutting the proposed marginal street be required to pay assessments for any benefit that might result to their property. It was also recommended that the next Legislature be asked to pass a law providing for the assessment. The work on the lower section, from Charles to Gansevoort sts.,

will be begun at once.

There was a lively debate yesterday before the plan was adopted, in which the Controller and the three Dock Commissioners, and also Mayor Strong.

At the last meeting of the Board the Dock Commissioners were 'equested, on Controller Fitch's motion, to divide their plan into two parts, to be considered separately. They came back yesterday and declined to present separate plans, and asked again that the Board should accept their plans as whole. President O'Brien of the Dock Board refused to put in such divided plans, and insisted that the Board should accept or reject the matter

A surprise was in store for the congregation when the minister began his discourse. He said he had decided to adopt a novel method to get a good collection, and when he stated that young women would pass the collection boxes there was astonishment. The young women had been selected, and to them the pastor said:

"I have known great power in pretty smiles in collecting money for good work."

Glancing significantly at the young men seated in the rear pews, Dr. Thomas continued: "Now, young ladies, I want you to smile right into the generosity of this congregation and penetrate their pocketbooks." The collection was for the education of young men who wanted to enter the ministry, and before the pastor pronounced the benediction he were a look of satisfaction, indicating that the smiles of the girl collectors had been tripumphant. retard the whole improvement, which is of so much importance to the city from a commercial point of Dock Commissioner Einstein also argued that the improvements should be adopted, and so did Commissioner Merks.

"We have put up more piers at auction than any other Dock Board that ever existed," said Mr. Einstein when the Controller demanded that public auction instead of private sale should be resorted to in disposing of the city's dock property.
"Yes," retorted Mr. Flitch, "but when you have a choice morsel it suits you best to dispose of it by private agreement.
"What do you mean by that?" excluimed Commissioner Einstein with blazing eyes and cheeks.
"Take that back! I say take that back! and he shook his fists threateningly at the Controller, who sat on the opposite side of the long table.
"If you stand there until I take it back," returned the Controller laughing, "your hair will be a good deal whiter than it is now before you sit down."

be a good deal whiter than it is now before you sit down."
Mayor Strong managed to restore harmony without the shedding of blood.
Recorder Goff said he did not like the attitude assumed by Mr. O'Brien and his associates toward the Sinking Fund Commission. He thought that Board had some rights, and should not be throttled by the Dock Board.
David McClure, representing the Consolidated Gas Company, and a representative of the Brown Trust Company opposed the improvement, because it would interfere with their property.
"As if there ever was a big public improvement that did not interfere with some private individuals," said the Mayor. "Besides, the Consolidated Gas Company could get along even if all the property they have around West Sixteenth-st. was taken away.

erty they have around West Sixteenth-st. was taken away. President O'Brien then said that threats had beer President O'Brien then said that threats had been made by corporations doing business on the North River that the Dock Board would not be able to get the north section of its improvement through. "One of these corporations sends its attorney here to oppose it," he said. "The time is gone by when private corporations can stop a public improvement because it interferes with them."

The Board finally agreed to approve the whole plan as presented, provided that the separate resolutions already described were passed.

According to the estimates of the Dock Board, the improvement will cost upward of $$8,000,000$. Some other estimates place it at $$11,000,000$.

In the discussion the Mayor strongly favored the improvement.

W. MORETON SMITH'S BODY TO BE SENT TO PENNSYLVANIA AS SOON AS IT IS

W. Moreton Smith, the writer for "The Mail and Express" who was drowned from a saliboat in the North River, near Fort Lee, on Sunday, was a phia and began his newspaper work in Omaha in 1885. In 1887 he went to Lincoln, Neb., where he was a writer for "The Evening News" and "The became the proprietor of "The Lincoln Courier," and managed the newspaper until he came to this city in 1836 and connected himself with "The Mall and Express," His mother, who is in Wellsboro Depot, Penn., has telegraphed to friends in this city to have his body sent on to her as soon as it is

Smith, came to this city from Nebraska recently and obtained employment as a stenographer with Moore & Schley, in Broadway. After a short service he was made manager of the firm's uptown office. His sister, who was rescued from the overturned boat, was removed yesterday to the house of a friend at Roseville, N. J. She said that after the boat capsized Mr. Smith immediately sank out of sight. A moment later her brother was blown off the boat and sank. She clung to the boat until she lost consciousness.

ACCIDENT ON SHERRY'S NEW BUILDING. William Helstein, thirty-two years old, of Newark. a carpenter, while at work yesterday on Sherry's new building, No. 526 Fifth-ave., fell six stories through the building, and received injuries which will probably prove fatal. The man was working alone on the sixth floor. The beams have not yet been covered with planking, and the workmen have to be very careful. Another carpenter, named O'Brien, saw Helstein as he reached the third floor, and tried to stop his descent, but unsuccessfully. In reaching to save Helstein O'Brien himself lost his footing and fell several feet, but was saved by falling astride a beam.

Helstein was found unconscious in the basement. An ambulance took him to the Flower Hospital. It was there found that his skull was fractured, that both legs were broken, and he had also sustained internal injuries. third floor, and tried to stop his descent, but un-

No plea was put in for the prisoner by his counsel, ex-Assistant District-Attorney McManus. The latter said that as there were no mitigating circumstances in the case in favor of Homer, there was no use in asking for any other sentence than imprisonment for life. Hitherto prisoners charged with killing a person have not been allowed to plead guility to murder in the second degree, but the State now recognizes the piea. Homer's is the first case.

EPILEPTIC FIT CAUSED HIM TO DROWN. William Vallentine, twenty-seven years old, of Villian Place, West Farms, was drowned in the Bronx River yesterday afternoon while in an epileptic fit. The body was recovered. Vallentine and three companions were fishing in the Lower Bronx, about one hundred yards north of Lower Bronx, about one hundred yards north of Kellar's old icehouse. Vailentine had just cast his line, when he was seized with a fit and fell over the side of the boat into the river. His companions were so dazed by the accident that they looked on helplessly.

Policeman McGovern, of the Park Squad, saw the accident, and, procuring a boat, rowed out to the spot where Vallentine had sunk. He succeeded in getting hold of the drowning man, who, in his convulsions, struggled against his rescuer. Park Policeman Mooney started out in another boat and helped to bring Vallentine to the shore, but he was dead.

Wagner, of No. 192 First-ave., secretary: Felix Haas, of Central Market, Broadway and Forty-eighth-st., treasurer, and C. D. Moulton, manager. Mr. Moulton was for four years manager of the fat-melting department of the ex-tensive abattoir of the Eastmans Company, in this city. A prominent officer of the organization said to a Tribune reporter yesterday: "The new association is composed of 250 retail butchers, of whom there are about four thousand in this city, the most of whom we think will become members before the end of this year. The association is a co-operative company, and was The association is a co-operative company, and was formed in order to enable the retail butchers to dispose of their raw fat for making tallow more advantageously than they have been able to do for several years, during which the fat-melting business has been monopolized by the big local wholesale butcher and fat-melting firms of Schwarzchild & Suizberger, the Eastmans Company, the United Dressed Beef Company, Joseph Stearn & Sons and J. Donohue. About fifteen years ago the retail butchers received eight cents a pound for the fat. Now they received only one cent a pound. Recently the fat-melting trust wanted to cut the price down to three-quarters of a cent a pound, which the butchers could not stand. The butchers have to pay nine cents a pound for meat in the carcass, including the fat, and they can't afford to sell it back to the wholesalers for only one cent a pound for melting. Edible tallow is now selling for 3½ cents a pound. At these prices the renderers can easily realize a profit of about 1½ cents a pound. The price of raw fat, or suct, was forced down through a combination among the renderers, just as the Chicago Beef Trust has from time to time forced up the price of beef and other meats.

"A report that our association intends to build abattofrs here for the slaughtering of cattle in competition with the Chicago Beef Trust is premature. The subject has been informally discussed, but no action has been taken. Should such an operation be undertaken there would be several Western packers interested in the movement who are not connected with the Beef Trust. Among these would be the firm of Jacob Dold & Co., of Kansas City, which is one of the largest packing concerns in the city. The Standard Oil Company would not be in any way interested. Of course, if the enterprise should be undertaken, we should buy cattle in the West and ship them here to be slaughtered. We have has no negotiations with any railroad company or companies regarding the transportation of cattle from the West.

"Cattle have advanced fr formed in order to enable the retail butchers to dispose of their raw fat for making tallow more ad-

Several hundred members of the New-York Re a meeting last night in the Retail Butchers' Hall, at No. 17 East Fifty-seventh-st. The greatest se-crecy was manifested, and after the meeting the members were reticent. Vice-President George Wagner, of the association, presided, in the Wagner, of the association, presided, in the absence of the president. All he would say after the adjournment was that the wholesalers had increased the price to the retail butchers, and the latter would have to protect themselves by assessing the difference upon the consumer. Another man who was present said the butchers had agreed to act as individuals in the proposed increase. When this will take effect, and what the increase will be, he did not care to say positively, but he intimated that there would be higher prices almost immediately.

JEAN DE RESZKE ALL RIGHT AGAIN. London, June 14.—Jean de Reszke, who had been seriously indisposed for a fortnight and unable to sing at Covent Garden, appeared there this evening as Tristan in "Tristan und Isolde." The house was crowded, and M. de Reszke had an enthusiastic reception. It is now expected that M. de Reszke will appear with Mme. Melba several times during Diamond Jubiles week.

LEGAL INTELLIGENCE.

ALIMONY SOUGHT IN TWO STATES. Justice Beekman, in the Supreme Court, yesterday expressed the opinion that a plaintiff of fendant is not entitled to receive alimony in actions pending in two States at the same time. The point arose in an action for a separation brought by Mrs. Sarah Caroline Costello against her nusband John H. Costello, the tanner, on the grounds of cruel and inhuman treatment. Mr. Costello is the plaintiff in an action brought against his wife on the ground of her infidelity, which is still pending in the Pennsylvania courts.

Costello owns real estate both in this city and in Pennsylvania. The Costellos were married in this State in 1881, and have had seven children, of whom three are still living.

Frederick B. House, counsel for Mrs. Costello, said that her married life had been unhappy for many years, and as far back as 1893 her husband began an action for an absolute divorce against her in Pennsylvania, but dropped the action and ceased to pay his wife alimony. He began a second action in the spring of 1895, and the Pennsylvania courts awa ded $200 a month to Mrs. Costello pending its trial. A jury returned a verdict in favor pending its trial. A jury returned a verdict in favor of Mrs. Costello. Her husband appealed, and stopped payment of his wife's alimony. He began to pay the allowance again, however, when Mrs. Costello brought the present action, after dropping the payments for two years.

Justice Beekman took the papers, and said he would consider whether Mrs. Costello was not entitled to counsel fee, but said he could not award allmony to her.

LOCAL BUSINESS COMPLICATIONS.

H. Witte & Co., importers of reeds, bamboos and Japanese tsinglass at No. 104 John-st., made an assignment yesterday to Edward Goldschmidt. The business was established in 1839 by H. Witte. who died in 1889. His son, George H. Witte, succeeded to the business, and in 1895 incorporated it with a capital stock of $50,000. He became presi-dent and Max Gatke became vice-president and treasurer. The latter was reputed to have put $22,500 cash into the concern. George H. Witte said yesterday that the liabilities were about $30,000, yesterday that the liabilities were about $30,000, and that the assets would exceed that figure. The assignment, he thought, would be only temporary. It was baused by the failure of the Phemix Rattan Company, of Concord, Mass., the depression in business and expected changes in the tariff.

The Sheriff has received an attachment against A. W. Paine and Howard Platt, shoe manufacturers of Holbrook, Mass., for $4,883, in favor of the United States Leather Company, it was served on two merchants here, but it was said they had no property belonging to Messrs. Platt and Paine.

Justice Beekman of the Supreme Court has appointed Albert Hartog receiver for the firm of Woolsey & Co., proprietors of a storage warehouse at Nos. 152 and 154 West One-hundred-and-twenty-seventh-st., in a suit brought by Malcolm Smith against his partner, John W. Woolsey, to dissolve the copartnership. The firm was formed last February.

A CHILD RUN OVER AND KILLED. Tobias Baily, the three-year-old son of Michael Baily, who lives on the top floor of the tenement-house No. 163 Greenwich-st., was run over and fetally hurt in front of No. 14 Carlisle-st. by an express wagon owned by James O. Morgan, of Newark, and driven by Joseph Silvey, of Newark. The driver was attrested. The child's mother picked him up and ran with him to the Church-st, police station, but before she got there the little fellow was dead.

On that day the secretary of the company drew the money from a bank. On his way back he stopped at a restaurant for lunch. He left the satchel in the care of the cashier of the restaurant, who was a young woman. She placed it under her desk. A man had followed the secretary into the restaurant and ordered a meal. When he had finished it he went out, but returned in a few minutes and ordered six sandwiches. The cashier turned from the desk to order them, and when she looked around again the stranger was walking out of the door with the satchel. Two waiters had seen him take the satchel, but thought being a very broad one, there was to-day considerable excitement. July shorts were put to flight, and the July price advanced 1% cents. September gained 1% cents, December 1% cents. The close was practically at the top. wheat was put as high as 30 per cent. The decrease in the visible supply proved larger than expected—1,763,000 businels. There were a lot of other built statistics. The world's shipments—5,322,000 businels—were 1,400,000 businels less than the week previous, 3,000,000 businels less than the set than the set than as tyear and 5,000,000 businels less than in 1880. There was a decrease on passage of 1,120,000 businels. It was estimated that the world's visible would decrease Tuesday about 4,000,000 businels. The trade was more largely in September and December to-day, but the principal excitement was in July. It opened at 60 cents to 65% cents, sold between 68% cents and 70% cents, and closed at 70% cents. September closed at 65% cents, and closed at 70% cents. September and To-6 cents, Percember at 67 cents. July offerings were scarce, practically all the new trade being September and December. That made it harder for shorts to cover, and that in turn increased their anxiety. Temperatures in the Northwest were high, up to 100 in parts of North Dakota Sunday. There were further complaints of grasshoppers from South Dakota. The spot demand here was poor, only 10,000 bushels sold, but Toledo sold a cargo of 60,000 bushels. Cables were rather disappointing.
